

Stanford Summer

Stanford | ARTS

The HUMANITY IS INDIVISIBLE series

Moderated by Jasmina Bojic - Camera As Witness Program Director and Founder of the international documentary film festival UNAFF

Thursdays at 7:00 PM - FREE and open to the general public
Stanford University, Hewlett Teaching Center, Second Floor, Room 201

July 19 7:00 PM

July 26 7:00 PM

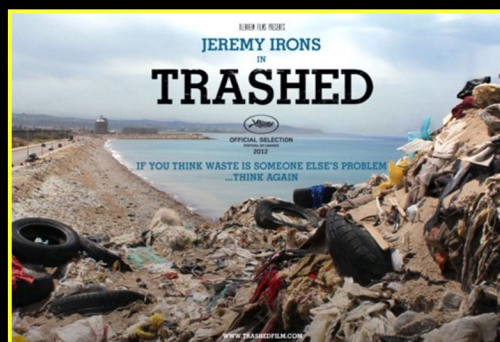

August 2 7:00 PM

STINK! (91')

USA

A first-person story about one father's absurd journey to find out what kinds of chemicals are hidden in a pair of his kid's pajamas and how he discovers that some products on our store shelves are not safe - by design. Follow Whelan as he clashes with political and corporate operatives all trying to protect the darkest secrets of the chemical industry. You won't like what you smell.

TRASHED (97')

China / Indonesia /
Lebanon / UK / USA

Academy Award-winner Jeremy Irons is on a world tour as he discovers the pressing issues surrounding waste and sustainability. Each year, we now throw away fifty-eight billion disposable cups, billions of plastic bags, 200 billion litres of water bottles, billions of tons of household waste, toxic waste and e-waste.

TOMORROW (120')

France / Germany / India /
Kazakhstan / UK / USA

In 2012 Nature published a study led by more than twenty researchers from the top scientific institutions in the world announcing the possible extinction of mankind before the end of the 21st century. An inspiring documentary that presents concrete sustainable solutions implemented throughout the world by different communities to avoid this gloomy scenario.

CAW is generously supported by the Atlantic Philanthropies, Helen and Peter Bing, The Marcus Family, the Vice Provost for Undergraduate Education et. al.